

Lytvynenko M.
National Aerospace University "Kharkiv Aviation Institute"
Zjubanova Natalia, senior lecturer of Foreign Languages Department

MODERN APPROACHES TO LEARNING FOREIGN LANGUAGES

Language learning is an important aspect of modern education, contributing to the development of communicative, cultural and professional competences. However, the process of language learning is not simple and straightforward, but requires the use of effective methods and approaches that take into account the characteristics of the language, the learner and the learning environment.

A great way to learn foreign languages, such as English, improve your pronunciation and communication skills in general is to watch movies/TV shows and listen to music. Most entertainment content is in the original English. And in my opinion, the original is always better. It is a perfect solution for those who prefer useful entertainment. While watching different videos in another language, you can practice your listening skills and easily catch up on familiar phrases. It is also useful for keeping up with modern slang and abbreviations, as such things are not usually taught in schools or other educational institutions. At the same time, listening to music improves your memory, concentration and attention span. It is a great way to take a break from intensive study and simply review the material through favorite songs.

I also recommended that you start thinking in that very language. The biggest advantage of this approach is that you do not necessarily have to be fluent, as many people think. In fact, thinking in your target language is the key to achieving your goals. Once you have mastered this tried and tested technique, you will immediately notice significant improvements in your language acquisition.

Generally speaking, the most effective way to learn a foreign language is to move to a country where everyone speaks it. In this case, whether you like it or not, you will learn the language and later use it as a native speaker.

Learning a foreign language is a complex and varied process that requires different methods and approaches. Some of the creative methods are using cards, thinking in the target language, watching films and listening to music. However, these methods should be combined with other methods that focus on different aspects of language learning.